Make the Dot was founded to help modern fashion teams' creative ideas succeed. It should be easy to tell compelling visual stories without days spent on downloads or email chains.

And it is the company's belief that fashion creation is larger than just one person. It is the hours of conversations between design teams, the line reviews, the false starts. It is the flashes of inspiration, the multiple design sketch iterations, the handoff of specifications, and everything in between.

That is the reason that the team is building a single web software platform for the entire process, starting with the visual storytelling of fashion concepts and themes.
